For Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Sick Headache, Chronic Diarrhœa, Jaundice, Impurity of the Blood, Fever and Ague, Malaria, and all Diseases caused by Derangement of Liver, Bowels and Kidneys.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

SYMPTOMS OF A DISEASED LIVER.

Bad Breath; Pain in the Side, sometimes the pain is felt under the Shoulder-blade, mistaken for Rheumatism; general loss of appetite; Bowels generally costive, sometimes alternating with lax; the head is troubled with pain, is dull and heavy, with considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of leaving undone something which ought to have been done; a slight, dry cough and flushed face is sometimes an attendant, often mistaken for consumption; the patient complains of weariness and debility; nervous, easily startled; feet cold or burning, sometimes a prickly sensation of the skin exists; spirits are low and despondent, and, although satisfied that exercise would be beneficial, yet one can hardly summon up fortitude to try it—in fact, distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred when but few of them existed, yet examination after death has shown the Liver to have been extensively deranged.

It should be used by all persons, old and young, whenever any of the above symptoms appear.

Persons Traveling or Living in Unhealthy Localities, by taking a dose occasionally to keep the Liver in healthy action, will avoid all Malaria, Bilious attacks, Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Depression of Spirits, etc. It will invigorate like a glass of wine, but is no intoxicating beverage.

If You have eaten anything hard of digestion, or feel heavy after meals, or sleepless at night, take a dose and you will be relieved.

Time and Doctors' Bills will be saved by always keeping the Regulator in the House!

For, whatever the ailment may be, a thoroughly safe purgative, alterative and tonic can never be out of place. The remedy is harmless and does not interfere with business or pleasure.

IT IS PURELY VEGETABLE, And has all the power and efficacy of Calomel or Quinine, without any of the injurious after effects.

A Governor's Testimony.

Simmons Liver Regulator has been in use in my family for some time, and I am satisfied it is a valuable addition to the medical science. J. GILL SHORTER, Governor of Ala.

Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, of Ga., says: Have derived some benefit from the use of Simmons Liver Regulator, and wish to give it a further trial.

"The only Thing that never fails to Relieve."—I have used many remedies for Dyspepsia, Liver Affection and Debility, but never have found anything to benefit me to the extent Simmons Liver Regulator has. I sent from Minnesota to Georgia for it, and would send further for such a medicine, and would advise all who are similarly affected to give it a trial as it seems the only thing that never fails to relieve. P. M. JANNEY, Minneapolis, Minn.

Dr. T. W. Mason says: From actual experience in the use of Simmons Liver Regulator in my practice I have been and am satisfied to use and prescribe it as a purgative medicine.

SELECT STORY.

THE YOUNG REPROBATES.

"No!" sighed Mr. Belton Bellew, dejectedly, as he mixed a little more burnt umber on his palette for the nut brown tresses of the "Maid Marian" that he was putting on canvass, "she don't love me! She can't! No woman ever treated a man so if she cared two straws for him."

But it was not of Maid Marian he was thinking; it was Dolly Brooke, the pretty girl whose mother had rented the old brown-brick house at the corner of the street, and whose eyes were so blue and sparkling, and yet so cruelly cold.

He had been introduced to her and met her a great many times that winter. He had even danced with her at the Blue-bell sociables, held her hand in the Caledonians, and stood beside her in the Virginia Reel.

He did not think from her manners that she absolutely disliked him, but he was very sure that she did not care for him. And this unreasonable young artist made himself miserable accordingly.

"She is such a darling!" he said to himself—"such a human rosebud, with coloring in her hair such as Titian never dreamed of, and eyes that Salvator Rosa would have painted in ulta-marine with sea-blue shadows! But what is the use of my mooning about her? I'd better accept Raymond's offer, and go to Rome with him, even if I had to starve there in a garret. Art will perhaps smile on me, but Dolly Brooke never will."

And he painted on, resentfully dab bing away at "Maid Marian's" round nose with a heart as heavy as if he were moulded in lead.

While at that very moment Dolly Brooke (her Christian name was Dorothea) was dusting the parlor at home, with her head tied up in a blue cambric sweeping-cap, and her lovely cheeks heightened with true feminine exercise; while Norah, the help, stood meekly in the doorway with a scrubbing-brush in her hand.

"Yes, if you please, Miss?" said Nora. "A letter from Mike—an' you'd please to answer it, Miss, for not a single worrud can I write!"

Dolly left off polishing the base of the little statuette of Ceres, and looked at Norah with a pretty puzzled expression of countenance.

"But, Norah," said she, "how absurd all this is! How can I answer Michael's letter? How shall I know what to say to him?"

"Sure miss," said Norah, her honest eyes lighting up, "and that's easy enough. Just tell him, in fine, scholarly writing, Miss, that I love him with all my heart. That's what I want him to understand, Miss; for sure, he ain't quite in his mind about it, an' he's way off in County Roscommon, Ireland."

"Very well," said Dolly, half smiling at the idea, "I'll try. Come to my room in half an hour, Norah."

And Dolly inexorably locked out her two little brothers who were enraged at their being debarred from "the fun of hearing Norah's love letter."

"Go about your business, boys," said Dolly, severely. "It's no affair of yours."

Johnny and Billy looked indignantly at one another.

"We'll serve her out!" said Johnny.

"We'll let her know!" enigmatically responded Billy.

And these young lads, with their chins balanced on the garden wall like Raphael's cherubs, betook themselves to throwing stones at the cat, while they consulted as to the special variety of Nemesis which should be visited on Dolly's unconscious head.

"I've got it!" said Johnny, smiting his leg, at last.

"Eh!" said Billy.

"We'll make an April Fool of her!" shouted Johnny.

"Yes; but how?" said Billy.

"Ah-h!" said Johnny. "You always was a softy, Bill. I'll tell you by-and-by."

* * * * * * *

"Now, Norah," said Dolly, seated at the table, with the fresh sheet of paper, the new steel pen and stand of violet ink before her, "how are we to begin? 'Dear Mike?'"

"Sure, miss," said Norah, who was standing respectfully near the door, with a clean calico apron, "an' ain't that too plain like? Make it a little sweeter, Miss—the saints be good to you! An' just tell him I love him true, though I haven't told him so before, an' I'll be constant to him to the wurreld's end! There!"

"Very well!" said Dolly contracting her brows. "Keep still for a few minutes—very still, mind!"

And Norah, shifting her weight from one foot to the other, scarcely dared to breathe, until at last Dolly flung aside the pen and pushed back her chair, reading out what she had composed with all the grace or rhetorical effect.

"Will that do?" she asked.

And Norah, clasping her hands in delight, answered:

"Och, Miss, an' book-print itself couldn't be finer! An if ye'll sign it 'Your own true love,' Mike'll know who it is, true and certain."

"There is mamma's bell!" said Dolly suddenly. "Run, Norah. We'll in close the letter in an envelope and post it after dinner. There has been quite enough time wasted in love-letter writing already."

And then she sat down and fell into a sort of half-conscious reverie.

"All the girls have lovers," she said to herself; even poor Norah, who can neither read nor write! They all have lovers except me! Oh, I wonder—how it would seem to have a lover?"

And instinctively her thoughts wandered off to Belton Bellew, the handsome, pale-browed young artist, whose studio was on the next street.

"Ah," she pondered, 'he thinks of nothing but his art! He has no time to dream of love! And if he had, I am scarcely vain enough to fancy that he would care for me!"

And Dolly Brooke cried a little, she did not know why. But when she came up stairs after dinner, the love letter was gone.

Dolly looked around her with a frightened face. The casement window was open a little way to admit the fresh March sunshine, and she could only imagine that the breeze had whirled the sheet out of the window.

"Poor Norah!" thought Dolly. "She shall not be disappointed."

And so she sat down and wrote it all over again as nearly as she could recollect the impassioned phrases, inclosed it in an envelope, and directed it, circumstantially, to Mr. Michael Mullaney, Blaney Hill, County Roscommon, Ireland."

And then she herself carried it to the post-box on the corner, directly under the window of Mr. Bellew's studio, while Billy and Johnny, in the wood-shed at the end of the garden, were giggling over the first copy of poor Norah's tender effusion.

"We'll kill two birds with one stone," said the precocious Billy, whose rancor had been heightened by Dolly's refusal to give him three helpings of raspberry-jam at dinner. "We'll make an April Fool of that Bellew fellow that comes prowling around to see Dolly, and we'll play a jolly game on her!"

And Johnny, sitting hugging his knees on the floor, chuckled aloud at the prospect.

The first of April dawned chill and bleak, and showery, like anything but the bright precursor of spring, and Mr. Bellew was just settling to work on "Maid Marian" when the postman rapped loudly at the door, and a letter directed in Johnny's school-boy chirography was handed in.

Bellew broke it open in some bewilderment, but his face lighted up when he saw the well known writing within. What! had he carried a scrap of Dolly's writing—the mere formula for some social game which they had played at her house—around in his breast-pocket for six weeks not to know it now?

"MY OWN SWEETHEART," it read, "I am resolved at last to cast aside all false pride and confess how dear you are to me. If it lowers me in your opinion I can but accept my lot in silence; but if you will write to tell me that your heart indeed responds—"

(Norah had especially exulted on this particular expression, as being "just exactly what she wanted Mike to understand")—

—'I shall be the happiest girl in America. And so I sign myself

FOREVER YOUR OWN TRUE LOVE."

Which latter somewhat abrupt fashion of ending had also been the result of Norah's fervent entreaty.

"He'll like it best, Miss," she had said—"he will indeed."

Belton Bellew read the letter over once, twice, three times.

"Am I dreaming?" he asked himself. "The sweet darling—she has read my secret soul! I must have worn my heart on my sleeve for daws to peck at! Write, indeed! I will go to her at once—this hour this very second!"

And, leaving "Maid Marian" staring at the uncertain sunshine with only one side of her left eyebrow painted in, Mr. Bellew rushed straight to the old brown-brick house, where Dolly was trimming her hyacinths, at the window, in a bewitching little pink gingham morning dress, with black velvet bows fastened on it here and there.

"Mr. Bellew!" she exclaimed with the prettiest surprise, as honest Norah, with her face one broad smile, showed him into the parlor.

"Dolly!" he exclaimed breathlessly, holding out his hands—"my own darling!"

Dolly turned pink and then pale.

"I don't understand you, Mr. Bellew," said she.

Mr. Bellew's countenance fell.

"Didn't you write this letter?" he demanded, holding it out, with a blank expression of face.

"Yes," said Dolly, glancing over the familiar words in extreme amazement. "I wrote it. But—but I don't know how it ever came into your hands!"

"You sent it to me," said the artist.

"No, I didn't!" cried Dolly, bursting into tears. "As if I could ever send such a letter as that to a gentlemen! I—I don't know how you could think so ill of me as that!"

"Dolly," faltered poor Belton Bellew, "didn't you mean it? Don't you really care for me?"

"Whether I meant it or not, don't signify," sobbed Dolly with her face still hidden behind her pocket-handkerchief.

"Oh, but it does!" said Mr. Bellew, gently obtaining possession of one of her hands. "Because, Dolly, I love you dearly! and if you won't love me back, a very little, I shall be wretched all my life! I don't think I ever should have courage to tell you this, darling, but now I feel so brave that I am determined not to leave this place without a definite answer."

How they settled it nobody ever precisely knew, not even Billy, who had his mischievous ear glued against the key-hole, in gleeful anticipation of "a jolly row." But he scampered down stairs, three steps at a time, to where Johnny was labelling lots of "April Fools" for the decoration of the backs of casual passers-by;

"Johnny," said he, "the thing hasn't worked at all. She wasn't mad worth a cent. He kissed her, as sure as you're alive, and she kissed him back; and he put a ring on her finger!"

"Pooh!" said Johnny, "I've no patience with such trash! Look here, Bill, I've painted fourteen of 'em—don't you think that'll be enough?"

When Mr. Bellew went away, feeling as if he were treading on air, Dolly came down into the wood-shed, where her younger brothers eyed her like convicted criminals.

"Boys," said she, "I've found you out. I saw Billy's writing on the outside of that letter which was mailed to Mr. Bellew."

"It was only an April Fool anyhow!" muttered Billy, turning red.

"No fellow thinks anything of that!" added Johnny.

"You did very wrong," said Miss Brooke. "But you are two darlings—and I love you ever so much!"

And she kissed and hugged both the young reprobates, and then ran away up stairs, quite unaware that the artful Johnny had succeeded in affixing a large placard to the back of her dress.

"Girls always are April Fools when they fall in love!" said the juvenile misanthrope.

Nor was he altogether wrong; but perhaps it was worth the obloquy of the thing to be very happy as was Dolly Brooke.—Helen Forrest Graves.

Fashion Notes.

TAKEN FROM OUR EXCHANGES.

Strawberry is the newest shade of æsthetic red.

Maize yellow is more fashionable than old gold.

Heliotrope silk, shading to gold, makes an exquisite toilet combination with black velvet.

The newest dress bodice is glove fitting, with large and full paniers around the hips.

An enameled gold bow is the new ornament for fastening bonnet strings.

Elbow sleeves of evening dresses are made very close-fitting, so that the long gloves may be drawn over them.

The English walking hat is as usual the first choice for autumn. The shape is stylish. Just enough crown not to look masculine, and the roll of the brim jaunty in the extreme.

There is a quaint little bonnet, with the brim quite pokeish, sitting on the very top of the head. The face is shirred with bright colored satin.

Wraps for the early, cool days of autumn are now in demand. Frilled wool in tiny checks, brown, blue, green and black. The brown tints are especially very rich.

Ottoman silk is to be revived, a silk not known to fashion for years, but will be remembered as the heavy corded silk, in the good old days of our grandmothers.

Floriated patterns in silk, velvet and satins will be more gorgeous than ever this season. Plush is also brought out in new beauty and with more vivid coloring.

The fabrics that come with machine-embroiderd selveges are lovelier than ever, and best of all, come within the range of every purse.

Some scarfpins for gentlemen are set with quaint designs, such as an oxidized squirrel exploring a cracked nut of dark bronze. A bronze crab with dead-gold decoration, and a grinning ape.

Chatelaine bags are again very generally worn, often hanging from the arm, from which they are suspended by a colored ribbon tied in a bow at the top.

A well-bred man will always remove his cigar from his lips when he bows to a lady and even when he passes a strange lady in a hotel corridor or in the street.

Black Chantilly lace flounces that have been out of fashion for years are being revived for trimming of full dress toilets of ladies.

Boots and shoes, even for outdoor wear, not unfrequently have the upper portions made of material to match the dress worn with them.

Artistic jewelry of antique silver, quaintly chased, is very fashionable, and silver chatelaines are much sought after, as are also brooches, lace pins and agrafes of the same description.

A very stylish bonnet shown at a late opening has a crown of cloth of gold with a garmnet velvet brim. Cluster of pompadour pink and garnet feathers on the side.

Cloth and other woolen dresses have the skirt laid in deep flat plaits to the waist, coat basque, trimmed with braid and fastened down nthe front with Brandenburgs.

The latest novelties in evening dress slippers are those of satin, embroidered on the toes in an artistic design, in colored beads of two shades, with daintily-made bows entwined with the beads.

Gorgeous colorings are in the ascendant. Feathers and birds are the popular trimmings.

Large and small bonnets in every imaginable shape are shown. Velvet and plush are the materials most used, and every variety of shade in brown and red. Lincoln green and maize are in favor.

Crepe lisse ruching for the neck is once more growing fashionable. It is the most becoming of neckwear, softens and improves the complextion, is comparatively inexpensive, but should always be of the finest quality.

Velvet is advancing in price in anticipation of the great demand for this handsome fabric the coming winter. Lincoln green velvet makes a very rich toilet, and is especially handsome combined with the new cloth material of the same or a darker tint.

Balbriggan black hosiery, with white feet, are much worn in Europe. Some are embroidered on the centre of the foot and have openwork on the side. This make of hosiery has long been celebrated for its style and durability.

No Room in Heaven for Such a Small Soul.

A citizen of Michigan who has something of a reputation for his infidel views and arguments happened to meet seven or eight clergyman at a railroad station as they were waiting to take the train to attend a conference, and introducing himself to one of them he said: "I want half an hour's talk with the smartest one in your crowd. Who is he?" "Well Brother White is pretty smart," was the reply. The infidel walked up to the clergyman named and bluntly began; Preacher White, you hold that there is a God, don't you?" "Yes, sir." "And a heaven and a hell?" "Yes sir." "And that none but believers can be saved?" "Just so." "Well, sir, I don't believe any such thing, and I'll defy you to convince me!" "I shant try to, sir" "You won't? Don't you want me to be saved?" "No, sir—no sir. I wouldn't waste five minutes to send you straight to heaven." "Why not?" "Why, not?" Why, sir, folks have been going to heaven by the million for thousands of years, and there is now such a crowd up there that a small soul like yours could no more be found or heard of than an atom of sand thrown into the middle of the ocean. I'm too small potatoes to pay for the hoeing!"—[Detroit Free Press.]

A FRIEND IN NEED.

Time over and again Thomas' Eclectric Oil has proved a salutary friend to the distressed. As a reliable curative for croup in children, sore throat and bronchial affections, and as a positive external remedy for pain, it is a never failing antidote.

Convention Topics Reviewed.

The following resolutions were adopted at the close of the session of the Danville District, M. E. church convention held at Hazleton Tuesday and Wednesday, September 26 and 27. The committee to whom was referred the subjects under discussion at the convention, beg leave to report the following:

1, That we believe with the introductory sermon that the chief need of our ministry and membership to day as a prerequisite for the work of saving souls and the construction of Christain character is the anointing of the Holy One.

2, That the aspects of things on the district as sketched in the presiding elder's report, and the verbal statements of the pastors, present, ground for encouragment and should inspire us with greater faith in our cause and in ourselves.

3, That we are in thorough sympathy with the new feature engrafted upon the church convention idea of our presiding elder, viz: That of holding local conventions in the rural districts and villages, and we heartily recommend their continuance.

4, That we hail with pleasure the new phase of the temperance movement known as the "Prohibition Constitutional Amendment," and believe it to be the harbinger of the good time coming when the temperance element of the State shall get thoroughly organized, that it may show its real power, and we hereby pledge ourselves to support the men nominated for the Legislature who will pledge themselves to submit the question to the people.

5, That the Lord's Day as a command and privilege in its opportunities and blessedness should be guarded with a jealous Methodist eye against all evil tendencies of corporations, laws, individuals or the press so far as they interfers with the old time observance of the day God has sanctified and set apart for man's refreshment and worship.

6. That we are strengthened in our convictions that if Methodism would do its whole duty as an evangelizing force, our distinctive doctrines and usages should be kept prominent; that special attention should be given to class meetings, love feasts, revival meetings, the religious instruction of the children and the care of our converts.

We believe also that our class leaders should be men thoroughly consecrated to God, that they should prepare themselves thoroughly for their work, and would respectfully suggest (if deemed feasible) that a class leaders' convention should be held for the district, for consultation and prayer and the comparison of methods, so that old-time meetings might again become a thing of power.

7, That in the matter of church financiering our people should use both conscience and method, and

BLOOMSBURG, PA.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 13th, 1882.

OHIO DEMOCRATIC.

THE MAJORITY ABOUT 25,000.

A GAIN OF TEN CONGRESSMEN CONCEDED.

NEW YORK, PENNSYLVANIA, AND CONNECTICUT WILL FOLLOW.

Our Rooster insists on crowing, but as he will need all his strength for next month in our own state, we restrain him. Ohio, one of the strongholds of Republicanism, has fallen into the Democratic column. Doomsday has come for the Stalwarts, and the result in Ohio on Tuesday has made Pennsylvania sure for a Democratic victory. The news comes too late for further particulars.

The notorious Harry Huhn, clerk of the House, whose personal compensation is $3,972 per annum, and who has charge of the disbursement of nearly $11,000, besides for "contingent expenses, etc," is an earnest supporter of Beaver. He well knows that the wholesale jobbery that has made Pennsylvania a by word and a reproach among her sister states will cease with the election of Robert. E. Pattison.

General Beaver is getting worse than ever. In addition to his awful mix in delivering the wrong speech, he is now terribly mixed in his arithmetic. He is reported in the West Chester Record as saying that "it took $43,000 to get 29,000 votes for the Independent ticket in 1881." Unless General Beaver is strangely misrepresented in his own organ, he should be presented with a copy of The Times Almanac and a table exhibiting the simple rules of additon and multiplication. In the first place the Independents polled 49,988 votes in 1881, and expended less than $4,000 for all sorts of campaign expenses. If General Beaver's political calculations for the campaign are no better than his knowledge of the history of last year's campaign, it isn't surprising that he still dreams of his election to the Gubernatorial chair.—Phila. Times.

Mr. Pattison will Come Out and Speak.

Chairman Hensel confirms the statement that between now and election day Mr. Pattison will go out into the State. He will not exactly "take the stump," nor has there been any change in the programme laid down by the State committee at the outset of the campaign when it was announced that Mr. Pattison would be seen and heard at different points in the state during the campaign. He will visit Mr. R. A. Packer, of Bradford county, this week, in pursuance of an invitation accepted months ago, and besides visiting Towanda, the terminus of his trip, he will meet the people of Hazleton, Drifton, Mauch Chunk, Wilkes Barre and Scranton. The week following will be the occasion of a short trip to Erie, which will take in Clarion and the oil towns, Corry and Warren, and a night at Erie. Later in the campaign he will go to Pittsburg and intervening points, and some of the cities nearer Philadelphia will be visited at convenient times. There may be meetings at some of these places to be attended by Mr. Pattison, but at others there will be social receptions and other informal occasions made to afford him an opportunity to meet the people of the representative sections of the state.

A Disgusted Radical.

The Pittsburg Dispatch, the leading Republican newspaper of western Pennsylvania, has become disgusted with the campaign that the "Christian states man" Beaver and the chattering Brosius is running and says:

To sensible people such arguments as those which are advanced day after day in the same monotone by Beaver and Brosius must seem extremely silly; and the spectacle as two men who are supposed to possess some degree of honesty arguing ostensibly for the Republican party when in their hearts they know that they are pleading for the perpetuation of Boss Cameron's machine, must seem very humiliating.

The sneer of General Beaver, relative to the howling of the Independent candidates for office, comes with bad grace from that gentleman, as he has been howling for office for seven long years and never could get the shadow of a chance till he misrepresented his constituents at Chicago at the behest of Senator Cameron. Then he got as his reward a nomination which merely doomed him to certain defeat. As for Mr. Brosius, he was opposed to bossism in a weak way till he received a nomination at the hands of the bosses, and then he became one of the most servile advocates of the machine. Yet all Independent Republicans will echo his hope that every man will vote to the satisfaction of his own conscience. If every Republican votes as his conscience dictates the Independent ticket will be elected and Messrs. Beaver and Brosius and their associates will be left with only the bosses, their lieutenants, the chronic officeholders and chronic officeseekers.

The Latest Stalwart Move.

In its last extremity the Stalwart state committee has placed M. S. Quay in charge of the campaign, and his latest strategy has just come to light. For several weeks he has had Delaney, Gallagher and a number of other Irish politicians who are in his pay, in different sections of the State, verbally circulating the false Pattison speech against the Irish, and getting the names and addresses of every Irish voter in the State. Priests have been applied to in several instances for these names, but without being informed of the real use to be made of them, and Quay now has the name and address of some forty thousand Irish voters in the State, to whom a circular will soon be sent, containing the false speech that Quay has invented to be circulated as Pattison's speech, saying, that the O's and Mc's must go to the rear, etc. They will have the circular appear to be sustained by Democratic authority, and it will be in the hands of the forty thousand Irish voters within the next ten days. Delaney is also expected to have this false speech published in the New York Tablet, a leading Catholic journal, and if that can be effected, a large edition of the paper will be obtained and a copy sent to each of the names on Quay's forty thousand list. Delaney hopes to use the New York Tablet in this matter as he used the Catholic Standard of Philadelphia in 1878, when the Standard was deceived by the Dill Know-Nothing falsehood. It is regarded as doubtful whether the Tablet can be imposed upon by a false speech prepared by Quay, when the purpose to deceive Irish voters is so transparent.

This trick will recoil with fearful vengeance on the party that has attempted it.

BLOOMSBURG.

WHAT A PRESS REPORTER FOUND OUT.

The Philadelphia Press of Friday week contains a long article on Bloomsburg. There are some errors in statistics, but in the main the article is correct, and worthy of reproduction. We print portions of it below. After describing the location the writer says:

The town of Bloomsburg was laid out and named as early as 1802 by a German settler named Ludwig Eyer. In 1846 it became the county-seat of Columbia, after a long and bitter fight with Danville, which had previously been the capital. In order to decide the question the Legislature passed an act authorizing a vote on the question of a relocation of the county-seat, and it was decided by a popular vote to remove it to Bloomsburg, the latter place furnishing the land and erecting the buildings, the money for that purpose having been raised by public subscription. This was in 1845, and it was thought that peace and quietness would now reign after the county-seat qestion was settled. But such was not the case. In 1849 another bitter fight arose about the formation of a new county, out of parts of Columbia, to be called Montour, with Danville as the county-seat. The latter place still smarted over the victory of Columbia in taking the county-seat away from her, and her people sought to have a county of their own. On the 3rd of May, 1850, the new county of Montour was formed, Danville was made the capital, and it was thought that peace was finally restored between the two belligerent districts, as both now stood on equal footing, but such was not the case. Another fierce contest arose as to the repeal of the act of 1850, which finally resulted in the passage, on the 15th of January, 1853, of an act to straighten the division line between the two counties, by which a portion of the acquired territory was reannexed to Columbia. And now, after a lapse of nearly thirty years, the fierce strife has been almost forgotten, and peace and quietness reign between the people of the two counties. Columbia contains about 479 square miles, and according to the census of 1880 she had a population of 32,408, which has probably been increased 500 since that time.

NAMING THE TOWN.

When Mr. Eyer gave the settlement the name of Bloomsburg he was doubtless impressed with the beauty of the location, and felt that there was no place in that region where a town could bloom more luxuriantly, and he straightway gave it the title of which it is now so proud. For many years after it was named, and particularly during the contest with Danville (which was then coming into prominence on account of its iron manufactories), it was scarcely ever spoken of by any other title than that of "Bloom," and that was generally applied derisively. But it continued to grow and bloom on its hillside location, until it has bloom-ed into a thrifty, active, enterprising burg, and it is now accepted by all as the lovely Bloomsburg, destined, before many decades roll away, to develop into a full-fledged city of twenty or thirty thousand inhabitants.

* * * * *

The town is supplied by water pumped into a reservoir on an elevation high enough to give sufficient pressure to throw a stream over the highest church steeples. The water is very pure and healthy, as it flows from the mountains, down a stream that has become historic since the rebellion. The reservoir and works, which are not far from the town, cost $40,000. The court house is an antiquated structure in the old part of the town, but it will either be greatly improved soon or a new building erected. A new jail south of the railroad was recently built at a cost of $60,000. The front is of Farrandsville stone and presents a fine appearance. There are ten churches in which the population of 5000 worship, embracing Presbyterian, Methodist, Baptist, Welsh Baptist, Reformed, Lutheran, Evangelical, Episcopal, Catholic and African Methodist. The church property is valued at about $80,000.

A MAN OF ENTERPRISE.

Bloomsburg largely owes its present prosperity to Rev. D. J. Waller, who came here more than a third of a century ago as the pastor of the Presbyterian Church. He is an ardent disciple of Calvin, a man of broad and liberal views, far-seeing, active, energetic, sagacious and progressive. For a third of a century he administered the Word of God in the little church of unpretending appearance, which still stands on the principal street. Finally he retired from pastoral labors, to devote his attention to a different line of duty, although he has not entirely relinquished the pulpit, which he occasionally fills. With the sagacity so characteristic of the man he foresaw a brilliant future for the place, and he made heavy purchases of valuable lands on the outskirts of the town, and laid it off into lots, had fine broad streets surveyed, and held out inducements to purchasers that were so tempting that many availed themselves of the bargains, and the result was that the town commenced growing. He donated the land on which the jail is built. Many fine dwellings have been erected on lots which he sold, and many more will soon go up. His own solid brick house, once out of town, is now in the centre of the addition.

INDUSTRIAL ENTERPRISES.

There is considerable manufacturing at Bloomsburg, and the indications are that it will increase rapidly. Among the oldest enterprises may be mentioned the Bloomsburg Iron Company, which operates two furnaces, owned mostly by Eastern capitalists. Between 150 and 200 men are employed. The furnaces were started in 1844 on a capital of $200,000. When both stacks are in blast, about 12,000 tons of iron are turned out per annum. The iron is nearly "neutral," and is of superior quality. C. R. Paxton is president, and E. R. Drinker, manager. Next in order comes the Bloom furnace, the building of which commenced in 1853, and it was successfully "blown in" in 1854, under the firm name of McKelvy & Neal, and continued as such till January 1, 1875, when Mr. McKelvy retired and the business was continued by William Neal & Sons. They employ from 150 to 200 men, and the annual production is about 8000 tons of very superior forge and foundry iron. The amount of capital invested is from $150,000 to $200,000. From the furnaces, one turns to the car works of G. M. & J. K. Lockard, which give employment to 250 men. Heretofore they have been averaging thirty-six eight-wheel cars per week, besides mine cars. The firm have been enlarging their works from time to time and are still contemplating further improvements. The capital employed is fully $200,000.

Here follows a description of the Normal school, with some well deserved compliments, but the facts given are too familiar to all our people to need repetition.

Among the wealthiest residents of the place is Rev. David J. Waller. His wealth, it is conceded, which consists largely of real estate, is fully a million of dollars. In its acquisition he has labored hard, and made ventures, the very boldness of which surprised people, and there were plenty of predictions of failure, but through good management and sagacity he has succeeded. And there are few but wish him continued success, as he has not only benefited himself by his bold operations, but given the town a boost which has sent it booming along the highway of improvement. The next man of wealth is Matthias S. Appleman, an extensive owner of ore lands, who is worth fully half a million. Then comes I. W. McKelvy, the merchant, who is set down as worth $250,000. David Stroup, an industrious and acquisitive small dealer, is worth $100,000. The Moyer Brothers, extensive wholesale and retail druggists, are worth fully $100,000, having acquired their wealth within a few years. There are others whose fortunes range from $50,000 to $75,000, but the foregoing will suffice to show that Bloomsburg, although small, has within her borders men of greater wealth than are often found in larger and more pretentious places and that a prosperous future evidently lies before her.

REPRESENTATIVE MEN.

Bloomsburg has a number of representative men, also, who are distinguished for their abilities as statesmen, jurists and politicians, who should not be overlooked in this sketch. The first deserving attention is the Hon. William Elwell, president judge of the Twenty-sixth Judicial district, composed of the counties of Columbia and Montour. As an advocate he early distinguished himself at the bar, and when elevated to the bench he did not disappoint his friends, who claimed for him superior qualifications for that high position. For years Judge Elwell has been regarded as one of the ablest common pleas judges in the State, and so well satisfied are the people of his district with him that he was renominated unanimously a few weeks ago and will be supported at the polls irrespective of party.

As a politician and a statesman, the Hon. Charles R. Buckalew, who also resides here, stands deservedly high. He served with success and ability as a United States Senator, as well as the representative of his government to one of the South America republics. He is a lawyer of ability and long since made his mark at the bar. He ran for Governor a few years ago but was defeated. Among the literary men of the town may be mentioned Colonel John G. Freeze. He is also a lawyer, but his mind runs largely to literary pursuits, and he has recently prepared an exhaustive history of Columbia county, which is ready for the press. That it will be a valuable work everybody admits, because the industrious and careful author is not likely to have omitted a single item worthy of being embalmed in history. Among the representative men, too, may be mentioned the members of the press. Bloomsburg has three excellent weekly papers. The Columbian, conducted by Elwell & Bittenbender, is an able exponent of the principles of Democracy. The office is neat, well equipped, and Colonel Freeze's great local work will be printed there. The Republican, conducted by D. A. Beckly, and James C. Brown, is the Republican organ of the county, and a paper of ability.

The Friendship hose carriage has been very handsomely decorated by M. C. Sloan & Bro. It has new iron scroll work in front to support the new silver lamp, and the reel is covered with a drum on which is an eagle and the name and number of the company. The carriage is painted black with gold bands, and makes a very rich and elegant appearance. The Friendship boys always try to keep ahead.

Judge Elwell read an opinion last Friday morning, setting aside the report of viewers of a county bridge over the Susquehanna river at Bloomsburg. The report was not in the form required by statute in several particulars, any of which were fatal. The bridge question should not be allowed to drop here. There should be an application for another view at the earliest possible moment.

Don't read this—it is only intended for the man who wants to buy full value for his money and you can always get it at the popular clothing store of D. Lowenberg.

There was a very pleasant gathering at the residence of Daniel Miller in Main township on Saturday, September 30th, the occasion being his birthday. A surprise party was arranged by his children, and about one hundred persons were present to enjoy it. The father was presented with a handsome chair, and the mother with a fine silk dress, besides many other gifts.

Economy is the secret of wealth, so always go to D. Lowenberg's and buy your clothing. You can always get the best value, latest styles, and reliable goods.

A number of bodies have recently been removed from the Episcopal burial ground by friends of the deceased, and there are a great many more that ought to be removed by friends during the winter, and not left to be taken up at the public expense. When the church lot is improved, as it will be after the dead are all removed, it will be a great advantage to that part of the town, and will undoubtedly increase the value of all surrounding property.

The finest line of wedding and party invitations ever exhibited in this town will be opened next week at the COLUMBIAN store. This is the only office in the county that keeps such goods in stock.

A Senator Nominated.

The senatorial conference met at Williamsport on the 5th. Lyman B. Speaker was the candidate of Sullivan county in place of James Deegan who died. A great many ballots were taken, and several adjournments had until Tuesday afternoon when the candidates released their conferees from instructions and W. W. Hart of Lycoming was nominated on the 355th ballot.

It is no use talking, says Brown, when I go to the Bloomsburg Fair I am going to buy a good overcoat at the popular clothing store of D. Lowenberg; he can always suit me and give me satisfaction.

A correspondent writes the following from Espy:

Workmen are busy rebuilding the Methodist Episcopal church in this place. The old church will be taken down except the bare frame. This will be enlarged by plans furnished by Jacob Snyder, architect, Akron, Ohio. Wm. Carter, Bloomsburg, is the contractor. If the builder gets a clear conception of the architect's idea, and realizes it in the building, we will have one of the most complete churches for preaching, social and Sabbath school services, at the same time one of the most beautiful village churches in the State.

The crowd during Fair will be found looking at the Fall and Winter goods at D. Lowenberg's.

Millin Items.

The potato crop is a good one through here. Some of the farmers, however, complain of a rot starting in.

Mr. John Williams Jr., of Nescopeck, and Miss Frankie Creasy of this place, were married on Saturday by Rev. McCutcheon. May their joys be many.

Mr. A. C. Snyder of Chicago, spent a few days at his old home last week. Fourteen years ago he left this place, then being twenty years old. After clerking nearly a year at Wetherly he went to New Haven, Conn., where he joined a whale fishing crew. From New Haven the crew went to Greenland where they spent eighteen months. On coming back to New York he clerked in the New York tea store for some time; from there he went to Chicago where he has been in the fruit and produce commission business for the past ten years, doing a great deal of travelling and has been in all the states east of the Rocky mountains. In this time he has been to his home a few times but this is the first time since the death of his father, Isaac Snyder.

A large crowd gathered at the Lutheran church on Sunday evening to hear the farewell sermon of the pastor, Rev. Mr. McCutcheon. He is, without any doubt, one of the most able and best educated ministers that have ever been here. He moved Tuesday to Dansville, New York, where he has been called.

Music dealer, W. S. Keller, of Catawissa, bought the leaving minister's span of ponies. They are good travellers and Keller has a nobby team.

David Harpster, who formerly lived at this place but has been absent from his family for seventeen years, made his appearance a few days ago. He looks much older than when he left. He left the same day.

His son Christian is one of the best farmers this township contains.

A Professional Confession.

THE UNUSUAL EXPERIENCE OF A PROMINENT MAN MADE PUBLIC.

The following article from the Democrat and Chronicle, of Rochester, N. Y., is of so striking a nature, and emanates from so reliable a source, that it is herewith re-published entire. In addition to the valuable matter it contains, it will be found exceedingly interesting.

To the Editor of the Democrat and Chronicle:

SIR:—My motives for the publication of the most unusual statements which follow are first, gratitude for the fact that I have been saved from a most horrible death, and, secondly, a desire to warn all who read this statement against some of the most deceptive influences by which they have ever been surrounded. It is a fact that to-day thousands of people are within a foot of the grave and they do not know it. To tell how I was caught away from just this position and to warn others against nearing it, are my objects in this communication.

On the first day of June 1881, I lay at my residence in this city surrounded by my friends and waiting for my death. Heaven only knows the agony I endured, for words can never describe it. And yet, if a few years previous, any one had told me that I was to be brought so low, and by so terrible a disease, I should have scoffed at the idea. I had always been uncommonly strong and healthy, had weighed over 200 pounds and hardly knew, in my own experience, what pain or sickness were. Very many people who will read this statement realize at times that they are unusually tired and cannot account for it. They feel dull and indefinite pains in various parts of the body and do not understand it. Or they are exceedingly hungry one day and entirely without appetite the next. This was just the way I felt when the relentless malady which had fastened itself upon me first began. Still I thought it was nothing; that probably I had taken a cold which would soon pass away. Shortly after this I noticed a dull, and at times a neuralgic, pain in my head, but as it would come one day and be gone the next, I paid but little attention to it. However, my stomach was out of order and my food often failed to digest, causing at times great inconvenience. Yet I had no idea, even as a physician, that these things meant anything serious or that a monstrous disease was becoming fixed upon me. Candidly, I thought I was suffering from Malaria and so doctored myself accordingly. But I got no better. I next noticed a peculiar color and odor about the fluids I was passing—also that there were large quantities one day and very little the next, and that a persistent froth and scum appeared upon the surface, and a sediment settled in the bottom. And yet I did not realize my danger, for, indeed, seeing these symptoms continually, I finally became accustomed to them, and my suspicion was wholly disarmed by the fact that I had no pain in the affected organs or in their vicinity. Why I should have been so blind I cannot understand.

There is a terrible future for all physical neglect, and impending danger always brings a person to his senses even though it may then be too late. I realized, at last, my critical condition and aroused myself to overcome it. And, Oh! how hard I tried! I consulted the best medical skill in the land. I visited all the prominent mineral springs in America and traveled from Maine to California. Still I grew worse. No two physicians agreed as to my malady. One said I was troubled with spinal irritation; another, nervous, prostration; another malaria; another, dyspepsia; another, heart disease; another, general debility; another, congestion of the base of the brain; and so on through a long list of common diseases, the symptoms of all of which I really had. In this way several years past during all of which time I was steadily growing worse. My condition had really become pitiable. The slight symptoms I at first experienced were developed into terrible and constant disorders—the little twigs of pain had grown to oaks of agony. My weight had been reduced from 207 to 130 pounds. My life was a torture to myself and friends. I could retain no food upon my stomach, and lived wholly by injections. I was a living mass of pain. My pulse was uncontrollable. In my agony I frequently fell upon the floor, convulsively clutched the carpet, and prayed for death. Morphine had little or no effect in deadening the pain. For six days and nights I had the death-premonitory hiccoughs constantly. My urine was filled with tube casts and albumen. I was struggling with Bright's Disease of the Kidneys in its last stages.

While suffering thus I received a call from my pastor, the Rev. Dr. Foote, rector of St. Paul's Church, of this city. I felt that it was our last interview, but in the course of conversation he mentioned a remedy of which I had heard much but had never used. Dr. Foote detailed to me the many remarkable cures which had come under his observation, by means of this remedy, and urged me to try it. As a practicing physician and a graduate of the schools. I cherished the prejudice both natural and common with all regular practitioners, and derided the idea of any medicine outside the regular channels being the least beneficial. So solicitous, however, was Dr. Foote, that I finally promised I would waive my prejudice and try the remedy he so highly recommended. I began its use on the 1st day of June and took it according to directions. At first it sickened me: but this I thought was a good sign for me in my debilitated condition. I continued to take it; the sickening sensation departed and I was able to retain food upon my stomach. In a few days I noticed a decided change for the better as also did my wife and friends. My hiccoughs ceased and I experienced less pain than formerly. I was so rejoiced at this improved condition that, upon what I had believed but a few days before was my dying bed, I vowed, in the presence of my family and friends, should I recover I would both publicly and privately make known this remedy for the good of humanity, wherever and whenever I had an opportunity. I also determined that I would give a course of lectures in the Corinthian Academy of Music of this city, stating in full the symptoms and almost hopelessness of my disease and the remarkable means by which I have been saved. My improvement was constant from that time, and in less than three months I had gained 26 pounds in flesh, became entirely free from pain and I believe I owe my life and present condition wholly to Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, the remedy which I used.

Since my recovery I have thoroughly reinvestigated the subject of kidney difficulties and Bright's disease, and the truths developed are astounding. I therefore state, deliberately, and as a physician, that I believe that more than one-half the deaths which occur in America are caused by Bright's disease of the kidneys. This may sound like a rash statement, but I am prepared to fully verify it. Bright's disease has no distinctive symptoms of its own, (indeed, it often develops without any pain whatever in the kidneys or their vicinity), but has the symptoms of nearly every other known complaint. Hundreds of people die daily, whose burials are authorised by a physician's certificate of "Heart Disease," "Apoplexy," "Paralysis," "Spinal Complaint," "Rheumatism," "Pneumonia," and other common complaints, when in reality it was Bright's Disease of the Kidneys. Few physicians, and fewer people, realize the extent of this disease or its dangerous and insidious nature. It steals into the system like a thief, manifests its presence by the commonest symptoms, and fastens itself upon the constitution before the victim is aware. It is nearly as hereditary as consumption, quite as common and fully as fatal. Entire families, inheriting it from their ancestors, have died, and yet none of the number known or realized the mysterious power which was removing them. Instead of common symptoms it often shows none whatever, but brings death suddenly, and as such is usually supposed to be heart disease. As one who has suffered, and knows by bitter experience what he says, I implore every one who reads these words not to neglect the slightest symptoms of Kidney difficulty. Certain agony and possible death will be the sure result of such neglect, and no one can afford to hazard such chances.

I am aware that such an unqualified statement as this, coming from me, known as I am throughout the entire land as a practitioner and lecturer, will arouse the surprise and possible animosity of the medical profession and astonish all with whom I am acquainted, but I make the foregoing statements based upon facts which I am prepared to produce and truths which I can substantiate to the letter. The welfare of those who may possibly be sufferers such as I was, is an ample inducement for me to take the step I have, and if I can successfully warn others from the dangerous path in which I once walked, I am willing to endure all professional and personal consequences.

Among the candidates for favor with the music loving world is the Ivers & Pond piano.

No better evidence of their merit could be given than that they have been selected for use in the New England Conservatory of Music at Boston, where they are made.

That the management should purchase fifty Pianos of this make is conclusive evidence of their confidence in the instrument. Had they entertained the least particle of doubt as to the durability or perfection of the IVERS & POND PIANOS, they would have acted more cautiously and purchashd a few of these instruments for trial. But this was not the case; they were entirely satisfied that the IVERS & POND PIANOS were as nearly perfect as could be made, and having arrived at that conclusion, adopted them for use at their conservatory.

J. Saltzer of this town is agent for these pianos, and has them on exhibition at his ware rooms. From personal examination the writer is satisfied they are just what they are represented to be.

Agricultural Topics.

From a pretty long experience in planting fruit trees we have come to the conculusion—and this is not the first time we have printed it in these columns—that two year old fruit trees are more certain to grow, to assume a good form, to become vigorous and long-lived than trees twice as old. Indeed, we have seldom succeeded well with trees more than two years old.

Some years ago we went to a nursery for some two dozen of pear and cherry trees, and in the hurry of writing the order, not being able to go after the trees personally, nothing was said about the age of them. We only said, "Send good trees, well-branched." We never saw a more perfect lot of trees, but they were at least four years old and some of them nine feet high. They were planted carefully and cut back severely, but only moderately at first, to save them. The spring could have not been more favorable for transplanting, and when the dry whether set in they were frequently watered, which doubtless saved the majority. Five of the old died. We do not remember losing a small tree. We repeat our conviction, therefore, that one and two year old trees are better in the end than those older; and though we may have to wait sometimes (not always) longer to get fruit, the trees are far healthier and more productive and give more satisfaction.

We may add that several of these pear trees were pruned within from six to ten inches of the main stock, resembling when done a half-closed upturned hand, and it not only saved them, but they are at this time in perfect health, growing finally. All fruit-trees, to afford the best satisfaction, should be of the age here indicated, and if properly planted and cared for, will be more hardy, vigorous and longe-lived than trees of older stock. The desire some people have of getting fruit as quickly as possible is not always realized by planting older trees; and from the very fact that they may bear earlier, will be at the expense of the health and growth of the tree.

WHEAT GROWING.

The success in growing wheat in Pennsylvania the last few years should stimulate us to raise a greater average per acre than has been the case in many portions of the state. We notice that as much as the average of thirty bushels has been obtained this year in some of the western states; and we are well aware that the yield has been increased this year in Pennsylvania—in some special instances over forty bushels per acre have been obtained. Of course there are various causes influencing success. That which might be an aid at one point might be an injury at another. But there are one or two matters that wheat growers are apt to forget. The first is, that as a general thing it is well understood that manure must be liberally applied to induce a good crop; but many persons plow it under, hence, it is not until the plant has set its roots deep down into the soil that it derives much benefit from manure. But if the manure is so placed that the young rootlets could push at once into it on germinating, it would get an early start on its vital course, which would establish it firmly against any future drawbacks.

In the second place few persons have any idea of how manure operates in making roots. If we bury a shovelfull of manure some distance from a thrifty tree in earily spring, and examine it again the ensuing fall, we find the lump of dung a complete mass of roots, while the earth in other parts contiguous has but a few struggling ones. Some people think that the roots are attracted to the spot by the manure: but it is not so. They are actually created by the manure. A leading root sucks into the rich mass, and finding plenty to eat, at once sets to work to increase and multiply. Contact with the manure, therefore makes roots; and the principle in successful wheat culture should place the grain and the food as close together as possible, if we would encourage it to start. We all know very well how this is done with corn. Manuring in the hill is quite a universal practice: but where it is not, the result is well known. We repeat, therefore, give the crops an early start. It has a wonderful influence in its efforts in after life to come out well.

KEEPING APPLES.

As the time is near at hand when the work of picking and putting up the apple crop for the winter and spring will have to be attended to, it is well that the methods preserving this valuable fruit should be considered. We have hitherto on frequent occasions discussed them, and pointed out what we conceived to be the best method to pursue. In brief, we would, therefore, repeat in substance, as follows: 1st, the apples must be good keepers, free from bruises or blemish. 2d, they must be spread out on shelves or packed in barrels, and kept in an atmosphere of from forty to fifty degrees, better from forty to fifty-five, and at a temperature as equable as possible. Some cellers are just the thing and preserve them beautifully. Others are too moist. Where this is the case a few bushels of stone lime should be used. Sliding shelves, six inches apart, latticed bottom with a single layer of fruit, are extremely convenient, as they allow of constant examination without disturbing the fruit. A friend informed us some years ago that with a large stand of these shelves in his cellar, with a few inches of lime on the bottom of the cellar, he kept his apples into May in perfect condition and good flavor.

A vault in the cellar, kept closed, but with some ventilation, frequently answers admirably, as we know from personal experience. If carefully packed in clean, naked barrels, the head forced down in order that the fruit may be quite solid, and the barrels placed under an open shed until late in November, but before hard freezing comes on, and then be removed to a dry cellar, where the tempature will range about what is stated above, there will be little danger of the fruit not keeping through the winter and late into the spring. Indeed, we have known it to keep until June.—Germantown Telegraph.

How to make Farmers' Boys Contented.

Let us suppose that a boy is to be a farmer. It is notorious that boys in these days do not take kindly to the farmer's life. What is the reason? Is it that the farmer's grains are slow, or that his labor is severe? These reasons partly explain the facts, but neither of them is the strongest reason. The loneliness of the farmer's life is a weightier consideration. The girls and boys now growing up, whether in the towns or in the country, do not like the isolation and solitude of the farm. They would rather live in less comfort, and work harder for less net wages, at more disagreeable labor in the factory villages and in the cities, because they like to be in a crowd. They depend on outside excitements. "There is nothing going on in the country." That is the uniform reason given for preferring life in the city.

The first thing to do in "fitting" a boy for the life of a farmer is, therefore, to get this notion out of his head. The reason why life is so lonely in the country is that his mental resources are so small, and his own knowledge of the objects round about him are so limited. If we could give the boys who are destined for such life as this a kind of training which would enable them to feel that there is something going on in the country all the while, something of a marvelous and thrilling intereft, that would help greatly in fitting them to their work. Would not this result be secured, at least in part, by giving a portion of the years now spent in the everlasting grind of arithmetic and geography to the study of natural history, the materials of which are under the farmer's feet and on every side of his path, and in the air all about him? Would not some knowledge of the minerals, the plants and animals of his own neighborhood, and some enthusiasm in protecting his studies among them, wonderfully broaden the farmer's life, and dispel much of its loneliness?

It would be easy to show how the study, in some elementary way, of these and perhaps other sciences of nature would do the same service for those who are to spend their lives on other industrial persuits, enlarging their horizon, multiplying their resources; and showing them how to extract from the world about them a higher enjoyment than is to be found in the diversions and dissipations on which the multitudes are taying to feed their cravings. —June Century.

The Poultry Yard.

The time is approaching when every breeder should see that his fowls are provided with green food for winter use. Fowls, as well as other animals, require a certain amount of coarse and refuse matter to keep them free from constipation, indigestion and other kindred complaints. The prudent and careful poulterer will take "time by the forelock," and before winter sets in will store away cabbage, turnips, rowen, onions and potatoes for his fowls. Cabbage is undoubtedly the very best and cheapest green food that can be had. It is not necessary nor economical to purchase prime heads for their use, as the soft heads which are not marketable are just as good, and they cost one half less. The same with turnips and potatoes; they can be had cheap by purchasing from farmers the small or refuse part of the crop. These articles can be stored in a dry cellar, and will be found very useful during the four or five months of winter, when the fowls require good feeding in variety to make them lay at all during the frigid term or to incite them to commence their work early in the spring. The lawn mowings and clover heads can be saved and stored away in coffee sacks in a dry, cool place until needed for use, and by steaming or cooking the vegetables with meal or potatoes there is no waste, and during cold weather it is a great need that must not be lost sight of if the breeder would do his stock justice and see them thrive and lay well in early spring, when their eggs are most valuable for securing early broods.

Crops in Continntal Europe.

The Vienna Presse, in a review of the crop prospects in Continental Europe, says Spain will again have a bad harvest this year. Italy has also a weak harvest. The French crops are not satisfactory as regards quality, the heavy rains having materially injured the character of the wheat. According to estimates, the crops will reach about 112,000,000 to 115,000,000 of hectoliters, while the requirements will amount to about 118,000,000. There will therefore, be a deficit of from 3,000,000 to 6,000,000, which will have to be covered by imports. In Germany the rains have severely injured the crop in the south, and less severely in the northern provinces, North Germany counts upon a full average yield of low quality, while Southern Germany will have a considerable decrease in the yield. The imports, it is estimated cannot be less than in previous years. Roumania and Servia have both average crops, the Servian yield being of finer quality than the Roumanian corn. Both countries produce more than they require for home consumption. Both will have a fair surplus for export. Reliable details af Russia's crops are wanting, but it appears certain that, with the exception of the province of Cherson, the average will about be reached, and already the exports of wheat and rye from the ports of the North, the Baltic, and the Mediterranean seas are proceeding in full swing. Hungary has a full average crop, Austria a week average and the quality available for export is estimated at 3,500,000 centners of wheat and flour, valued at 40,000,000 gulden. Of rye there is a surplus of 1,000,000 meter-centners available for export, worth 7,000,000 gulden. Oats will yield about 3,000,000 to 3,500,000 meter-centners for export.

Faded hair recovers its youthful color and soft, silky texture by the use of Parker's Hair Balsam.

Setting Apple Orchards.

Apple tree planting in orchards has been a subject of much controversy, but needlessly so we think. An apple tree will thrive just as any other tree if well cared for, and it will not if neglected. We should prepare the ground for an orchard as we would for a corn field or a garden, and would keep it cultivated for a few years, or till the trees had nearly covered the ground by their shade After that there are several methods, either of which will bring good results. The land may be scraped or harrowed over lightly or it may be seeded down to grass to remain in permanent sod. In either case manure or other fertilizer must be applied liberally, if heavy crops of good fruit are expected. If the grass be annually cut and carried off, more manure will be required than if the grass be allowed to lie and rot on the ground A great many persons seem to think that grass exerts some sort of a poisonous effect upon orchard trees, but we have never seen heavier or handsomer crops of apples than grew in orchards that were never ploughed after coming to maturity, but were manured heavily every year. Apple trees will also grow and produce well if in fields which can be used for pasture for swine or sheep. These animals will consume much of the wormy fruit and thus destroy the insects which cause so much harm to the crop.—Tribune & Farmer.

AN IMPORTANT DISCOVERY

Has been made whereby a successful vegetable combination has been introduced, which acts upon the bowels, the liver and the kidneys, and at the same time imparts strength and vitality to the entire system. Burdock Blood Bitters constitute this important discovery. Price $1.00.

A Bonanza in Potatoes.

The potato harvest is over in the South, and it has been a big and profitable one. A Southeastern Virginia correspondent says: "That man," remarked General Roberts, pointing out a man in the crowd, "sold $80,000 worth of irish potatoes this year, every one of which he raised on his own place." That sounds incredible, and yet it is true. The man alluded to was Ambrose Lindsay, who lives on the coast, near the Carolina line. Of this enormous crop I have no doubt $50,000 was clear money. Sol Haas told me of a man at Norfolk who cleared $35,000 on raising potatoes this year, and paid a debt that threatened to ruin him.

This is the best year for potatoes ever known. The last crop was short and poor, and there was no stock to start the season with. The high price of meat and bread increased the consumption of potatoes, and the heavy crop of this year was taken at high figures. Potatoes that dragged at $2.00 a barrel in New York last year brought $6.50 a barrel on the Carolina coast this year.

How to cook Rice.—It is a matter of surpise that so few people know how to cook rice, or take any care in cooking it, when there is all the difference in the world between well cooked and badly cooked rice. We do not wonder that it is little used at the North, as we seldom see it in any other form than a miserable pasty mush. The following directions come from an expert: In preparing it, only just enough cold water should be poured on to prevent the rice from burning at the bottom of the pot, which should have a close fitting cover, and with a moderate fire the rice is steamed rather than boiled until it is nearly done; then the cover is taken off, the surplus steam and moisture allowed to escape, and the rice turns out a mass of snow-white kernels, each separate from the other, and as much superior to the usual soggy mass as a fine mealy potato is superior to the water soaked article.

Banish ill health, nervousness, vexation, fretfulness, etc, by using Brown's Iron Bitters.

N. B. The Bad and Worthless Are never imitated or counterfeited.

This is especially true of a family medicine, and it is positive proof that the remedy imitated is of the highest value.

As soon as it had been tested and proved by the whole world that Hop Bitters was the purest, best and most valuable family medicine on earth, many imitations sprung up and began to steal the notices in which the press and people of the country had expressed the merits of H. B., and in every way trying to induce suffering invalids to use their stuff instead, expecting to make money on the credit and good name of H. B.

Many others started nostrums put up in similar style to H. B., with variously cunningly devised names in which the word "Hop" or "Hops" were used in a way to induce people to believe they were the same as Hop Bitters. All such pretended remedies or cures, no matter what their style or name is, and especially those with the word "Hop" or "Hops" in their name or in any way connected with them or their name, are imitations or counterfeits.

Beware of them. Touch none of them, but: Use nothing but genuine Hop Bitters, with a bunch or cluster of green Hops on the white label. Trust nothing else. Druggists and dealers are warned against dealing in imitations or counterfeits. (9)

A NOTED BUT UNTITLED WOMAN.

[From the Boston Globe.]

Messrs. Editors:—

The above is a good likeness of Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., who above all other human beings may be truthfully called the "Dear Friend of Woman," as some of her correspondents love to call her. She is assiduously devoted to her work, which is the outcome of a life-study, and is obliged to keep six lady assistants, to help her answer the large correspondence which daily pours in upon her, each bearing its special burden of suffering, or joy at release from it. Her Vegetable Compound is a medicine for good and not evil purposes. I have personally investigated it and am satisfied of the truth of this.

On account of its proven merits, it is recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country. One says: "It works like a charm and saves much pain. It will cure entirely the worst form of falling of the uterus, Leucorrhœa, irregular and painful Menstruation, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Floodings, all Displacements and the consequent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to the Change of Life."

It permeates every portion of the system, and gives new life and vigor. It removes faintness, flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, weight and backache, is always permanently cured by its use. It will at all times, and under all circumstances, act in harmony with the law that governs the female system.

It costs only $1. per bottle or six for $5., and is sold by druggists. Any advice required as to special cases, and the names of many who have been restored to perfect health by the use of the Vegetable Compound, can be obtained by addressing Mrs. P., with stamp for reply, at her home in Lynn, Mass.

For Kidney Complaint of either sex this compound is unsurpassed as is abundant testimonials show.

"Mrs. Pinkham's Liver Pills," says one writer, "are the best in the world for the cure of Constipation, Biliousness and Torpidity of the liver. Her Blood Purifier works wonders in its special line and bids fair to equal the Compound in its popularity.

All must respect her as an Angel of Mercy whose sole ambition is to do good to others.
